This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFACE.

For vocabularies of the language spoken by the aboriginal inhabitants of New Jersey we look to Heckewelder's "Words, Phrases, and Short Dialogues, in the Language of the Lenni Lenape, or Delaware Indians." In Transactions of the Historical & Literary Committee of the American Philosophical Society. Philadelphia, 1819. 8vo. Pp. 453-464.

Heckewelder's Comparative Vocabulary of Algonquin Dialects. Cambridge, Mass., 1887.

Zeisberger's Indian Dictionary—English, German, Iroquois—the Onondaga and Algonquin—the Delaware. Cambridge, Mass., 1887. 4to. Pp. v, 236.

A Lenape-English Dictionary, edited, with additions, by Daniel G. Brinton and Rev. Albert Sequaqkind Anthony. Philadelphia, 1888. Sm. 4to. Pp. 236.

A Grammar of the Language of the Lenni Lenape or Delaware Indians. Translated from the German Manuscript of the late Rev. David Zeisberger, for the American Philosophical Society, by Peter Stephen Duponceau. Transactions of the American Philosophical Society, Vol. III.—New Series. Philadelphia, 1830. 4to. Pp. 65-250.

The Salem Interpreter, recorded in the office of the Secretary of State, at Trenton, and printed in the writer's "The Indians of New Jersey," Paterson, N. J., 1894.

These various sources furnish perhaps three thousand different words.

In the following pages about six hundred and fifty personal names are given, not counting repetitions. These are practically all additions to the vocabularies above mentioned, and so form a very material extension of our knowledge of the Lenni-Lenape language.

Moreover, Indian personal names were usually combinations of nominal, pronominal and adjectival themes, so that this list is calculated to throw much light on the habits of thought, the mental characteristics, the structure of their language and the environments of the aborigines.

The student of the origin of language will be interested to notice that certain sounds are almost never used in beginning personal names.

The frequency of the letters of the English alphabet in beginning the names hereinafter given appears by the following table. The third column shows the frequency of the several letters, taken from a list of 15,800 names of white inhabitants of New Jersey, 1670-1730. Dividing this number by 26 we have 600 such persons, the same number as of the aborigines named. The comparison is therefore based on an equal number of names of Indians and whites, and of approximately the same period.

This comparative table is given for what it is worth. It is perhaps more curious than valuable.

Further examining the Indian names, we find that the letters b, f and v occur but 21 times in the entire list; l, 71 times; r, 150 times.

Taking c soft as equivalent to s, and c hard as equivalent to k; k for q and g; kh for ch; e for i, y and j (y); p for b, and the initial letters are reduced to 15, as follows:

As f occurs but once, and v only four times, it is probable that they have been incorrectly given, and they may be properly omitted. The sound indicated by w would be as well shown by ou. Thus the initial letters would be reduced to 12.

The preponderance of m is perhaps due to the prefix m', indicating a general designation, as opposed to one in particular; m, n and w suggest pronominal prefixes. But most of the names are evidently descriptive.

As for the pronunciation: names appearing in deeds prior to 1664 were written by the Dutch, except some on the Delaware river, which were written by Swedes. After 1664 deeds for lands north of Newark were usually drawn up by Dutch scriveners, and many in Monmouth and Somerset counties; but most of them were written by Englishmen.

It is evident that many, if not most, of these scriveners had little or no knowledge of the native language; also, that they lacked the "Indian ear," as Heckewelder calls it, and so were unable to apprehend the precise sounds of the spoken words. In the same deed the Indian names are usually spelled differently four or five times. Some of these variations have been given, that the reader may be better able to judge approximately what was the actual or probable pronunciation. As greater care is usually given to the signatures in an instrument, so it doubtless was with these Indian deeds, that the scriveners probably were more particular to have the names accurately written at the end. Hence, in the following list, special mention is frequently made of the forms of the names as "signed." Of course, the Indians themselves merely made their marks, often a tribal or gentile symbol, and the names attached to these marks were written by the persons who drafted the deeds.

About 250 of the names herewith given are compiled from the New Jersey Archives, Vol. XXI—Calendar of Records in the Office of the Secretary of State, at Trenton, 1665-1703. The figure following these names refers to the page of that volume where they may be found. More than half of the list has been gleaned by the writer from the records in the office referred to, having been omitted or overlooked by the compiler of the Calendar mentioned. Others have been gathered from all available printed sources, as well as from various original documents.

With very few exceptions no attempt has been made to interpret these names. This list was compiled with no such object, but rather to place it within the reach of expert students of the Algonquin language.

The origin and effect of Indian deeds for lands in New Jersey are explained in my "Indians of New Jersey." It may be noted, however, that because an Indian squaw or child joins in a deed it does not follow that the aborigines recognized the woman's right of dower, or the child's right of inheritance in lands. The simple fact was that the white purchaser acted on his own knowledge of the English law, and wished to be sure of acquiring the whole of the Indian title. For the same reason, probably, he was in the habit of getting all the Indians of a neighborhood, as tenants in common, to join in the deed for an extensive tract of land, or at least to have them sign as witnesses, so that on sober second thought they might not claim that they had had no knowledge of the execution of the deed.

Something like half of these names were published by the writer in the American Anthropologist for January, 1902. The interest manifested in that publication has led him to extend the list to its present proportions. It is believed that no such list of aboriginal personal names, principally of the seventeenth century, has ever been published before. That it may be helpful to the student of American anthropology, and especially of the language of the Lenni-Lenape, is the hope of the writer.

Cottenochque "and five other Indians," 560. Indian deed, Dec. 12, 1699. For land between Haunce Outson on Oldmans creek, Salem creek and Piles grove.

Cowalanuck. Indian deed, Nov. 19, 1681. See Pawark.

Cowescomen and two others of Staten Island, 1. Indian deed, Oct. 28, 1664. For the Elizabethtown tract.

Croppun. Indian deed, April 13, 1671. See Ahwaroeb.

Cuahiccon and Shenolope, Sachemes of Changororas. Indian deed, June 10, 1677. For land at Changororas. (Monmouth County.)

Cuish, Joseph. Power of attorney, Feb. 23, 1758. See Teedyescunk.

Cuttenoquoh, 440. Indian deed, June 9, 1683. See Manhauxett; and see Cottenochque.

Echkamare, an Indian of Sussex county, cir. 1715-40. See Ambehoes.

Edgaques, Etgaqui. Indian deed, May 19, 1671. See Assawakow.

Egohohoun, Chief of the Muncies, Lapink, Nepeas, Mechekamee, Cockalalaman, Lawykaman, Tutalayo, Kanashalees, Homeyquoaw, Beoppo, Pemattase, Quaquenow, Awquawaton, Chief of the Opings or Pomptons, Wettanesseck, Wayweenhunt, and Quiasecament. Signed—Homeyquoan, Beoppo, Pemattase, Quaquenow, Awquawaton, Wettanesseck, Wayqueenhunt, Quiasecamont, Egshohoun, Lapink, Nepeas, Mechekamee, Cockalalaman, Lawyhaman, Tutalayo, Kanashalees. Indian indenture made at Easton, Pa., Oct. 23, 1758, to Governor Bernard and Commissioners of New Jersey, for all the rights of the Minnisink or Munsie, and the Oping or Pompton Indians. "The Mingoes or United Nations have permitted their nephews said Minnisink or Munsie and the said Oping or Pompton Indians to settle on their lands on the branches of the Susquehanna and elsewhere, to which they have for their better convenience removed, and to convey the northern part of New Jersey." Witnesses (among others): Segehsadon or Tagashata, "the Seneca Chief or Sachem who spoke at the present treaty, and Tokahoyo a Cayuga, Chief and Speaker at the Treaty, Thomas King an Oneida Chief, who spoke at this Treaty in behalf of the five younger nations."—E. J. Deeds, Lib. I2, p. 89. See Smith's N. J., 445, 453.

Egshohoun. Indian deed, Oct. 23, 1758. See Egohohoun. Also written Egotchowen. See Smith's N. J., 465.

Ekinerchin, Eckenerehim, 17. Indian deed, May 19, 1671. See Assawakow.

Perhaps the same as Encheim, which see, below.

Elalie, 141. Indian deed, Oct. 29, 1701. See Tallquapie.

Emerus, Sachem of Navesinks. Indian deed, September 14, 1677. See Canackamack.

Menaukahickon, Mattamiska and Laparomza (or Lappawinza), Indian Sachems and owners of land within the western division of the Province of New Jersey. Indian deed, Aug. 18, 1713, to Daniel Coxe and others, for lands in western New Jersey, bounded northwards with the lands of Quenemeka; eastward with the einer Muskonetcong or the lands of Saphow and his relatives; southward with the lands late Sasakomaus, Wowapekoshots and Waukaucoimaus; westward with the River Delaware. "A certain Indian Sachem named Vorgaon" joins in the deed.—W. J. Deeds, Lib. BB, p. 140. See Manawkyhickon.

"Einer Muskonetcong"—probably einde Muskonetcong, at the end of; or perhaps the hinterland. See Quenamaka, and Sasakaman. All three deeds are of the same date, and doubtless were drawn by the same scrivener, probably a Dutchman. Perhaps the word is the Indian enda, suggesting the idea of place, or direction, as "the course of the Muskonetcong," or "at the Muskonetcong."

Mowessawach, Awies, Wachtaew, Kahaew, Mameeress, Nemeness. Indian deed, April 21, 1727, to Peter Fisher and Philip Koning of Japock, Bergen county, in behalf of Peter Sonmans, Sg^{r} Lord Proprietor, for lands at Pemrachquinming on the second river or creek west from Remopock river, "beginning on a small Pan, which will be drie up sometimes from said Pan running northerly along a short hill or mountain, and also along the marked trees to a great mountain," etc.—E. J. Deeds, Lib. E2, p. 152.

"Pan." The meaning seems to be a pond. The neighborhood has been always known among the old Dutch settlers as De Panne, or The Ponds. The etymology is obscure. The word pan in Dutch is as in English—a frying-pan, specifically. The Dutch dictionaries give een Stand water (standing or smooth water), paerde-wet (watering-place for horses), or vijver (a fish-pond) as the Dutch equivalent for the English "pond." The writer has conjectured that the word may be of Indian origin, but the Lenni-Lenape word expressing the meaning of pond usually has the inseparable generic suffix peek, paug, pock, as in nippeek, me nuppeek, Romopock. The simplest, though not wholly satisfactory, explanation seems to be that the word pan is merely a corruption of the English "pond." See Wanamasoa.

Nachpunk is the name of a swamp in the southeastern portion of Wayne township, which is drained by the Nachpunk brook into the Singack river. In 1898 I was retained to draft an act of the Legislature, incorporating the Borough of Totówa, and the name of this brook was given to me as one of the points in the boundary. I had no recollection of ever meeting with the name, and assumed it to be Dutch, and so wrote it Naaktpunkt—bare point—in the Act. (Laws 1898, page 98.) This explanation is given for the benefit of some future student. While writing this note, I am informed by a native of Wayne township, seventy years old, that he always understood from the "old people" that Nachpunk—and thus he pronounced the word, as in German or in Dutch—was an Indian name. The swamp in question is about five miles southwest of the Paterson city hall. The mouth of the Saddle River, in which the Indian Nackpunk was interested, is about five miles southeast of the city hall. It is possible that the Indian referred to may have removed his wigwam from the Saddle river to the swamp, afterwards called Nachpunk, but it was not an attractive place for the location of even a wigwam. See also Machpunk, Nachpong, Nathpoencque, and Onagepunk, which are probably variants of the same name.
